

Canada's Lakes Huge Asset in Her Commerce

Mr. Sweezy Describes Development of St. Lawrence Projects

Quebec Water Power Finest In World Claims Prominent Speaker

"The lakes of Canada are her greatest asset, and with them she may capture the markets of the world." This statement was made by Mr. Sweezy, President of the Beauharnois Power Corporation, in an address delivered at the Commercial Society's luncheon yesterday in the Union. The speaker was introduced by George How, President of the Society. Previous to the introduction, however, Sir Arthur Currie expressed his regret at not being able to remain to hear the address since he felt he should be present at the funeral of Doctor Eberts, a graduate of McGill and personal friend of Sir Arthur.

After a few well turned anecdotes Mr. Sweezy began the body of his speech with the fact that a large part of the country of Canada is lake area. Africa being the only other country with anything like the same extent of lakes. There is, however, a variation in flow at different seasons. The speaker pointed out the evils of such a variation from a power point of view saying that should the waterways become low, business relying on the power would be forced to slacken and profits would be lost. "Scandinavia and Finland are the only countries where there is a (Continued on page two)

Commerce Visits Phone Exchange

One Fifth of Montrealeers Have Telephones

"With Montreal's population well over a million, there are approximately 193,000 telephones in service in the city," Mr. W. G. Bell of the Commercial Department of the Bell Telephone Company told Third Year Commerce students at the Plateau Exchange yesterday afternoon. Mr. Bell with the assistance of Mr. Ferguson, Plant Superintendent, conducted the Business Boys on a tour of inspection which revealed many reasons why wrong numbers should be condoned.

The Plateau Building on Ontario Street houses the exchanges designated as Marquette, Lancaster, Harbour, and Plateau. Such a condensation of equipment is possible because more than fifty-five per cent of the phones in Montreal are on the automatic dial system. In the Plateau exchange itself, originating calls are handled on what is called the Plateau "A" Board by manual operators, but the calls are completed by the automatic system.

The students spent nearly an hour in the operating room, and marveled at the skill of the "Hello Girls" who seemed to know where each plug went without having to look. "They were shown how the work of three automatic exchanges was handled on a board half the size of that required for one manual exchange.

The unusual feature of the power room was its comparative quietness. Although an approximate amperage of 1200 must be maintained, they use no more than 48 volts. Each piece of equipment is duplicated in case of accident, and batteries are kept "floating", which means that they automatically come into service when the power fails.

One out of every five persons in Montreal has a phone, and information must be a slightly efficient system to take care of cutting old exchanges over to automatic, and to serve those who want to know the number of the 9000 new subscribers the company expects this year.

Because of the nature of the trip it has been split up this week, and Third Year Commerce men with titles from I to Z will visit the Exchange on Tuesday.

Old English Music to Be Heard Tomorrow

Dr. Edmund H. Fellowes, of St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle, will lecture on English Music of the Elizabethan and Jacobean Periods, at Moyne Hall, tomorrow evening, at 8:30. The lecture will be illustrated by music of the periods described, sung to accompaniment of lute and

Staff Of O.T.C. Reports Recruits Making Progress

THE C.O.T.C. reports favorable progress in all branches of recruit instruction. All the recruit drills were completed yesterday afternoon at the Montreal High School. Cavalry finished their required number of drills last week and are now attending the regular weekly rides; the infantry recruits remained a week longer in order to learn drill that is particular to their branch of the service.

The battalion paraded as usual in the Black Watch Armoury, and instruction by all ranks began this week. Lectures on the more intricate and technical sides of C.O.T.C. work are expected to commence in the near future. These will be held twice a week in the Engineering Building.

Crisis Blamed on Too Much Capital

Prof. Lattimer Details Causes Of Economic Depression

SCORES CHILD LABOR

Claims Elimination of This Evil Will Aid Unemployment Situation

"What Canada needs is not the man who is only willing to work, but the man who has vision to see opportunities and executive ability to make his dreams come true," declared Professor Lattimer at the lecture which he delivered at the Mechanics' Institute last night. This address, entitled "Business Cycles and Unemployment" was the second of a series to be given by various members of the staff of the university, and sponsored by the Department of Extra-Mural Relations.

The lecturer pointed out that there have been mentions of industrial cycles in history ever since Joseph, and that it has been shown, from records of the past forty years, that these are partially national and partially international. In Canada the national cycles come every seven years, and some of these coincide with international crises. He then took up some of the causes which are mentioned.

Lack of gold, he declared, was out of the question as a cause, since the crisis in 1907-8 occurred at a time when there was plenty of gold, as evidenced by the fact that food was very cheap. At present, too, the savings-bank deposits have increased showing no lack of money but lack of confidence. In answer to those who claim that the business system has broken down, the speaker submitted that it had broken down if it was supposed to provide plenty without any savings whatsoever for times of scarcity.

Outlines Over-Capitalisation
In explaining the main cause, Professor Lattimer explained that, when times are good, prices rise and (Continued on Page Four)

Dr. Murray Takes Up New Position

Will Occupy Chair of Bacteriology at McGill

Saturday November 22, marks the arrival in Montreal of Professor Murray, who will succeed Dr. F. C. Harrison to the important position of Professor of Bacteriology at McGill University. Professor Murray comes to McGill from the staff of the department of Pathology at Cambridge University England, where he was senior lecturer and had charge under Professor Dean in the teaching of bacteriology and laboratory work. The fact that he has published research work of merit, adds to the reputation that precedes him as a lecturer and organizer.

It is only equitable that the position he is to take up is one of general distinction. The Chair of Bacteriology in McGill is a general Chair, that is to say the lectures are open to students from every faculty of the University. Professor Murray while he will be a member of the Science Division in the Faculty of Arts and Science, will have charge of bacteriology in the Royal Victoria Hospital, as well as in Medicine, Arts and Science.

It may be of interest to the many friends of Dr. F. C. Harrison that he still remains abroad in a German health resort and that his condition is improving.

Paper Read on Development in German Policy

H. Heuser Tells of Modern German Socialist Party

SHORTENS SPEECH

League of Nations Club Discusses Their Proposed Model Assembly

At the meeting of the League of Nations Club last night a paper on the Development of German Policy after the dissolution of the Reichstag on July 18th, 1930 was delivered by Heinrich K. Heuser. Mr. Heuser gave a review of the development of the National Socialist Party and stated its program discussing it in relation to the program of the Drueening government.

Adolphe Hitler, leader of the German Fascist party was originally an Austrian. He joined the German army during the war and thereby lost his Austrian citizenship. He first appeared in politics in 1919 when he founded the German Workers party which subsequently became associated with Ludendorff's Nationalists. A coup d'etat was attempted in 1923 with a march on Berlin which however, was spoiled by the loyalty of the social democrats to the Republic.

Party Triumphs
Hitler was tried for treason and was sentenced to a five year term of imprisonment. After one year, however, he was pardoned by the German Republic. He then continued as the leader of his party and in the election of 1924 it obtained 32 seats in the Reichstag. He met only with partial success and in 1928 the number of representatives was reduced (Continued on Page Four)

Choral Society Initiates Policy

Astwood And Crossland Express Good Wishes

The opening meeting of the McGill Choral and Operatic Society took place in the ballroom of the Union last evening, with the intention of initiating policy and electing members to its vacant offices. Millard Astwood assured the club that they might rely on the co-operation of the Students' Executive Council, who were represented by a committee consisting of W. A. Barclay and B. M. Alexander with the intention of preparing a report. The same expression of co-operation and wish for success was given by C. W. Crossland, president of the Musical Association.

The regular business of the meeting, to elect members, was then commenced. President Allan in his remarks preliminary to the election of a secretary, pointed out the importance and responsibility of the office. A. S. C. Ritchie being elected took the secretarial chair.

In the discussion as to general policy which followed, Mr. Cooper expressed the view that operatic work, and especially light opera, was undoubtedly to be preferred to choral, since comparisons might be drawn with the high standards of a number of choirs already in Montreal.

Mr. Alexander on the other hand proposed that in addition to the "Pirates of Penzance," a more serious type of choral work should be substituted for light opera, saying that they would not have to cater to the general public as the cost of choral work was considerably less than that of light opera as the society did not expect to raise money. The ensuing discussion was sufficient for the formation of an adequate report for the Council.

Visit Plant

Electricians Go Through Northern Electric

The Third Year Electrical Class in Science visited the Shearer Street Plant of the Northern Electric Company, on Wednesday afternoon. The class was divided into two groups and each was provided with an able guide on its tour through the eight floors of the factory.

The electricians saw production from raw product to shippers, and inspected the offices, the spacious cafeteria, and the hospital. The trip proved interesting as well as extremely instructive.

Noted Canadian Is To Elucidate Truth Of Bible

DR. JONATHAN GOFORTH, prominent in Canadian missionary circles, will address McGill students tomorrow at four o'clock in the Music Room of the Union. Dr. Goforth is a man who is widely known and highly respected. A graduate of the University of Toronto, he has spent forty-two years of his life on the foreign field—in Hounan, China, and Manchuria—and in a few months will return, again to his work. One of his sons has been, up until a year ago, a professor in the Department of Economics at McGill. The subject which Dr. Goforth has chosen to speak upon is:

"The Reasons Why I Believe the Bible to be the Word of God". After giving forty-two years of his life to spread the message of the Bible in a hostile land, and now about to return once more to continue the work, Dr. Goforth certainly has good reasons for believing in the Book.

Declares R.V.C. Actors And Actresses Superior To Montreal Professionals

Kings, queens, gladiators, detectives, waiters and the devil himself were in evidence when members of the freshmen, sophomore, junior, and senior classes each presented a one-act play at the meeting of the Societe Francaise yesterday afternoon in the R.V.C.

The first year play, "Franches Lippe's," included in the cast Hilda Cotton, Eleanor Reid, Lucienne Fontaine, Adelaide Smith, Gwen Markwell, and Beatrice Klineberg. It was an amusing comedy between two couples having supper in a cafe, with each wife trying to get her husband to avoid paying the bill for the party. In the sophomore's presentation, (Continued on Page Four)

Palestine Question Will Be Criticised

Maccabean Circle Opens Session on Sunday

"The Situation in Palestine and Zionism" will constitute the question to be discussed at the first meeting of the Maccabean Circle in the coming 1930-31 session. The meeting will be held as usual in the ballroom of the Union, on the coming Sunday November 16 at 3 p.m. Bernard L. Cohen, B.A., B.C.L., and Samuel E. Schwilberg, B.C.L., who are prominent members of the bar and past members of the circle will be the speakers of the day.

As the Maccabean Circle has completed the first quarter century of its history, a topic of especial and international interest is felt to be needed. In view of the discussion in political circles over the policy displayed by the Macdonald Government in relation to Palestine, the above mentioned topic should be of great interest to a meeting of this nature. The "White Paper," restricting immigration into Palestine, has aroused the indignation of Jews the world over.

PLAYERS REHEARSE

"Ivory Door" Was First Produced in 1928 in London

If students wish to avoid the cry of "standing room only" at the forthcoming production of the Players' Club, "The Ivory Door," they should be on hand early today to buy their tickets. The box office will be open from nine to six daily, and student exchange tickets may be obtained from the students listed below.

At the rehearsal last evening, the "Ivory Door" producer Cecil West, who is a graduate of McGill, said he was quite satisfied with the progress that the players were making. He further stated that the main purpose of last night's rehearsal was to accustom the cast to making their voices carry in a hall. Up to the present the practices have taken place in a small room in the Union.

The "Ivory Door" is the first production to be put on by the Club, and it is thought that the high standard set by the players assembled (Continued on Page Four)

Research Marks World Progress

Students Hear Mr. Lathe on Modern Science

"The progress of civilisation has gone hand in hand with the progress in industrial research," declared Mr. Lathe of the National Research Council, at a lecture delivered yesterday to mining engineering students. He pointed out that there were two types of research, pure and industrial, and that they were interdependent, the value of science to civilisation depending on both.

He showed how industrial research is employed in making ore that appears worthless, available for use, and showed the value of this in Canadian industry, especially in the case of zinc. Research is also employed in furthering consumption, as in the case of nickel, for which many uses were found when there was a surplus of this metal after the war.

Another type of research mentioned by the speaker was plant research, that is, the improvement of methods of production in order to lessen the cost of manufacture. As examples he showed how, in the case of blast furnaces, careful research resulted in the saving of about one-sixth in fuel and a twenty-five per cent increase in production.

He concluded his lecture with a discussion of the work being done by the National Research Council. (Continued on Page Four)

Impersonate Roles

Men to Play Female Parts in Thespians' Show

Female impersonation will play as large a part as ever in the forthcoming production of "The Dover Road" given by the Westmount Thespians. composed largely of McGill undergraduates. The performance is scheduled for Friday evening, November 21st, and will be staged in Victoria Hall. A dance, to which all are invited, will follow the ringing-down of the curtain on the last act.

Prominent among the impersonators of the fair sex is Doug Hamilton of Arts '32. Selwyn Willis (Arts '33) will also be seen in skirts while the leading female role will be in the hands of Billy Walker. Others featuring in the cast are Buchanan Rolitt, and Wilson Beckel, both Arts Seniors, and Hugh Trimmingham and Donald Turner, both of Arts '32.

George Klumpston's McGill band will supply the music for the dance following the performance.

Philosophers Will Discuss Poem Of Robert Bridges

THE Arts Building will be the scene of the next meeting of the Philosophical Society. This assembly will be in co-operation with the English Literature Society, and will take place on Monday, November 17th, at 8 p.m.

The main business of the gathering will be in the form of a symposium on one of the poems of the late poet-laureate, Robert Bridges. The poem under discussion will be his "Testament of Beauty." Dr. Files will present an analysis of the work. David Lewis and M. Estall will read short papers. The meeting is open to all whom it may interest, and at the close of the address there will be an opportunity for any of those present to express their opinions bearing on the philosophical aspect of the poem in question.

Will Debate on Women's Rights

Calder And Mme. Casgrain To Speak at Union

IMPORTANT ISSUE

Prominent Undergraduates Will Support Principals In Controversy

This evening the Debating Union Society will stage a debate on, "Resolved that the Further Emancipation of Women is Desirable" at 8:15 p.m. in the Union. The leaders are Mme. Casgrain proposing, and R. L. Calder K.C. for the negative. Aiding the affirmative are Estelle Steinberg and Edmund Collard while for the negative are Beatrice Rosenbaum and Phil Matthews.

As both of the leaders have been described before little need be said about them. Mme. Casgrain has done campaign work in the recent elections, has been at the fore-front of all movements for the rights of women in Quebec and is the president of the League for Women's Rights. Mr. Calder is a well-known lawyer of this city and prosecuted for the Crown in the Delorme murder trial. As a graduate of McGill he has taken part in its debates and was recently on the same platform as Clarence Darrow here.

Expedition to Pole Gives Useful Data

Magnetic And Sunspot Variation Related to Aurora

Lecturing yesterday afternoon in the Physics Building on "Physical Problems in the Antarctic" Mr. Davies gave an account of some of the difficulties and advantages of making determinations of various kinds in the Antarctic regions.

At the base camp, some 750 miles from the pole, determinations of magnetic field and direction, as well as geological surveys and researches in radio, the Aurora, and general meteorological conditions, were made. This camp was built on a layer of ice about twelve feet thick which in turn rested on the open sea, at that point 1500 to 2000 feet deep.

It was found that, in the crevasses and in artificially made holes, the temperature variation during the day was almost negligible. Consequently, the measurements of magnetic fields and other work which had to be done at constant temperature, were all carried out in more or less underground (or rather under-ice) cavities. Very remarkable relations were found to hold between sunspot activity and magnetic variation. A large part of the findings of the expedition were shown to the audience as graphs and slides.

Graduates' Fund Gives University New Lectureship

Professor Adams of Oxford To Inaugurate Series

BEGINS IN MARCH

Interest On Sum Given By Alumni Since 1921 Centenary

Back in 1921 at the Centenary Reunion of McGill the Graduates' Fund was established. This fund was inaugurated for the use of those graduates who wished to contribute sums of money from time to time to the University. It was thought that by gradually building up a fund of this sort, something of real use and interest might be done for McGill. This fund has been accumulating since 1921, and this year the interest is to be put to use to the advantage of the University.

Following the lines of the famous Gifford lectures at the Scottish universities and the Hibbert lectures at Oxford and London, McGill, through the generosity of the Graduates, is to have what is to be known as the McGill Graduates' Lectureships.

Oxford Man Selected
Sir Arthur Currie was entrusted with the task of finding a man who is "outstanding in his own field," and has now done so. The first McGill Graduates' Lectureship will be held by Professor W. G. S. Adams of Oxford, who will be brought to McGill for a month in March.

Professor Adams is Gladstone Professor of Political Science, where he is also a member of the Hebdomadal Council or governing executive. He (Continued on Page Four)

Division Of Labor

THE University of South Carolina Gamecock has just published a list of ratings ranging from 5 to 100 for the various executive positions existing on their campus.
The object of the ratings is to establish a standard to be achieved by students before they become eligible for membership in an honorary fraternity which makes executive ability its chief criterion. Before he can be considered for membership, a student must score a hundred points.

The idea of giving recognition to men who do over a minimum amount of executive work is rather sound, and may correspond roughly to our major and minor executive awards at McGill, which no one has as yet occasion to attack. However, what occurred to us in reading the article was the fact that there might also be a maximum set, so that when a candidate for membership in the honorary executive fraternity added up points over a certain number he was excluded just as definitely as if he had not achieved the minimum.

This brings up a question which was given considerable attention at McGill three years ago. In fact matters got as far as a definite motion made at the meeting of the Students' Society in the Spring. It drew up a list of officers in several groups, and proposed a rule that no student should hold more than one office in the most important group, a few more in another group, and even more in a third.

The feeling at that meeting was definitely in favour of the motion, but it was withdrawn to be considered along with a general revision of the constitution of the Students' Society. Since then the motion or its principles have never been heard of.
Perhaps it is all for the best, for it is better that things which can be controlled by common sense should be so rather than by having definite rules drawn up. Still a little comment advising the student body not to concentrate all their executive responsibility on the shoulders of a few men is in order.

In the first place it is unfair to the men concerned. The refusal to accept any office is a hard thing to make, even if a man is short of time. Secondly, the experience given by the holding of an executive position should be spread fairly evenly among all the undergraduates at the University. Third, work is apt to be more efficiently carried on if it is done by men who can devote most of their time to it. And lastly, the concentration of important offices under a few heads tends away from our principle of centralised decentralisation.

The Wealthy Pauper

PLE gossip circulating outside the University gates calls him wealthy, but in reality the average college student has an income much below that which he would like to have in order to participate in all the activities which catch his fancy. Perhaps, it is just as well if it is thus; but there must be some ground for the contention that he has means at his disposal.
When Montreal has a tag day, and they are by no means infrequent, or a charity drive of some sort or other, McGill students are among the first to be asked to share in the contributions. Taggers are placed at the very gates of the Campus to remind all who enter therein that they are expected to take part. The popular opinion is, no doubt, that if students can afford to attend social functions staged in hotels, or drive 360 miles to see a football game, and spend other week-ends out of town, their financial resources must be manifold and to a certain extent unlimited.

The truth about the matter is. The average student works fairly hard during the summer months and manages to amass a sum which, in many cases, has to last him throughout the session. In this he frequently succeeds though it requires some careful planning. The result is that he acquires an acute sense of discretion in money affairs and whenever he spends in large sums though it may not often be, the casual observer concludes that the college student must have a very large purse.

Undergraduates make a little money go a long way and appear to be a lot. But this does not preclude the fact that generosity is unknown. The result of the recent Federated Charities Campaign forms a typical example of the attitude of college students towards voluntary giving. McGill surpassed its objective and now students are planning for other activities which loom on the horizon from time to time. The wealthy pauper plods along.

MAXWELL BODENHEIM

EX CATHEDRA

There exist, mirabile dictu, some college students, who think, that a course in contemporary literature should be included in the Arts curriculum of every self-respecting university. They are always being told, however, that, as it has never been done before, the traditional silence about living writers should be maintained in academic halls. Their bones have not turned to ashes yet, some of them are actually alive. Then how can you expect to evaluate their standing and judge their worth for literature as a whole when John Galsworthy or Theodore Dreiser are still known, in the respectable review, as Mr. Galsworthy and Mr. Dreiser. Besides you can't place them in relation to their time if you yourself live in it.

All these contentions are, to borrow a phrase from Mr. G. J. Nathan—"absolute piffle." The fact is that those interested in literature as a living thing—not the amateur archaeologists whose murky faces light up only when they have found that one of their predecessors in the art of obfuscation had erred as to the exact number of the possessive genitives in the Anatomy of Melancholy—are eager and willing to discuss the works of contemporary authors and learn what the professors are thinking about them. For after all, professors are not always steeped in the proverbial dust of the past.
They, too, strange as it may seem, read, enjoy and have definite opinions about modern literature. Do we then, have to come to the painful conclusion that they are reluctant to render a judgment until they have digested all the critical material which appears after the death of an eminent writer.

The contention that we cannot judge a specific book until we have put it alongside the author's complete literary output is another instance of critical juggling. A novel or poem is good or bad, judged merely by its intrinsic value. It will not be improved one iota even if the author writes twenty master-pieces after it, and its worth is not impaired, though all his later work be beneath critical attention. The same applies to the mistaken idea that a writer's merit depends on the general literary level prevalent in his age. But, D is not a good writer simply because A B and C are worse.
He is merely better than worse.

Considering all these so obvious reasons it is difficult to explain the reluctance felt by the authorities towards the establishment of a course in contemporary literature.

CORRESPONDENCE

The Editor,
McGill Daily,
Dear Sir:

An item in this morning's "Seen from the Press Box" stated that "in spite of the efforts of Jack Lafave the fans did not display much enthusiasm."

Allow me at this point to make a few observations which have suggested themselves to my mind at every home football game this season.

At the beginning of this semester the "Daily" published the views of several prominent students on the subject of organized cheering. There seemed to be a good deal of opinion both for and against,
but no decision was arrived at in the matter.

If we are to have organized cheering, then let's have it; if not, let's forget about it. As a newcomer to the University I have been very much struck by the half-hearted attitude shown in this respect. If we consider cheering as helpful to the morale of the team we should give them our whole-hearted support, and not just one yell at the beginning of each quarter as one might almost be led to believe to be the rule, judging from the spirit hitherto shown.

The co-operation of the student body seems to be there whenever the cheer-leader can be prevailed upon to leave his chair and overcoat to take up his hard-pressing duties. I was always under the impression that the repertoire of yells was greater than the lone "M-C-G-I-L-L," but hitherto that is practically the only one that has been heard.
Perhaps it would help the situation if the other yells which I am sure must exist somewhere were revived to add to this rather scant selection. A cheer-leader undoubtedly holds a position superior to that of the rabble, and he should also try to merit that position by his efforts to propagate the knowledge of college yells and by seeing that they are used. If we are going to keep to the custom of cheering as a body, then we owe it to the team on the field to give them frequent and hearty encouragement. As everybody awaits the cheer-leader's signal to root, it is to him that we must look if there is to be an improvement in the present situation. To this end I would suggest a more responsible and unselfish undertaking of his duties, placing his duties to the fans and the team before his personal convenience and interest in the play.

 Hoping that there will be an improvement in the cheering in the future, I remain

The Editor,
McGill Daily,
Dear Sir,

On Milton Street hangs a beautiful neon sign made in the likeness of a McGill crest bearing the legend "McGill Sandwich Shop—Soda." What has Arts '31 to say to that? I wonder will Messrs.
Ewing and McFadden be instructed to whisper a word to the wise to the manager of that institution.

It seems others took exception to Arts '31's views on the labouring classes but the years may change this. If his father doesn't ruin him with too great an inheritance; he may work and learn that the least paid girl on his staff may be just as much a lady as his sister. That is provided he has a sister and she is a lady. Fifteen dollar a week boy friends are the back bone of our nation, he will find and their thoughts are no coarser nor cruder than many in articles which amuse some of us which read the Daily.

Pardon this furthering of an already laboured subject, personally I think the McGill honour, power and glory great enough to survive a little fluttering of the crest.

Yours truly,
H. P. M.

The Editor,
McGill Daily,
Dear Sir,

It is a mystery to me and beyond by comprehension why Slopsist keeps railing on at women. He tells us how far below the male sex they are in brain power, weight and matter—physically weaker—psychologically stupid at differentiation—embryologically aborted—spiritually equipped, but remaining as soulless as an old shoe in a garbage can.

I should like to remind him that no one is responsible for his or her sex. The process is carried out by heredity and cell memory in which the child plays no intelligent or selective part. Instead of attacking an effect, why not tackle the primary cause, viz., Nature. It is worse than useless to spend time and space in bitter incriminations and vituperations on an effect. This is not a world of idealistic realizations. We come into it, male and female, without our consent, and are taken out of it without our consent. Really what choice, prerogatives or rights have we got?

The thing that is, was, and ever shall be, and there is no new thing under the sun, not even Slopsist's denunciations of woman. I am inclined to put his thoughts on this subject down to his own N.C.M. condition—who cares anyhow? Vanitas Vanitatum omnia Vanitas.

COLLEGE COMMENT

THE CURE

The complaint is often heard on the campus when low grades are mentioned, "Well, if there were not so much going on when I am trying to study, I could do more," and as a rule, the one who is complaining is the recipient of rather meagre marks.

It is true that in a rooming center, fraternity, or sorority house, where 25 or 30 students are gathered together, there is, as a rule, considerable activity going on. It is easy to drift into the habit of being disturbed by laughter and noise, of being susceptible to "bull sessions" and of finding the time passing all too quickly with little accomplished.

There are several cures for these ills. One of them is to move away from rooming centers and to live a somewhat secluded life. However, that isn't the preventative that would appeal to most students and the other cure is much better. If not quite so easy. That is to cultivate the habit of concentration.

Later in life, when the student is perhaps one of a great office force, he or she is apt to find it necessary to work with considerable noise going on about him. It will then be necessary to be able to place the mind on one task in spite of all obstacles. Apparently, now is the time to become used to concentration and the student will find that it will not only aid him later but also at the present time—Syracuse Daily Orange.

CONDUCT IN THE UNION

This week-end will of course be a time for those who use liquor in any form to come out and openly show it to the public. Celebrations such as Homecoming always seem to call for such displays. There is practically no way in which any authorities at all can stop drinking among a body of men, if they are of a mind to do so. But there is one request that can be voiced in this regard.

The management of the Union feels that if the Union, at the time of its Homecoming initiation, can show to alumni and students that drinking will not be tolerated in the building, and that anyone under the influence of liquor will be asked to leave, it will have solved this difficulty for all time. A fine start in this matter will in itself be a large step toward the establishment of such a custom.

Consequently, anyone who plans to attend the mixer Saturday night, or use the Union building at all this week-end, is asked to remember that drinking will not be tolerated. Of course, this is true enough at all times, but more especially so at this particular period. There are men who can drink and hold their liquor, and there are those who drink and do not have the faculty of holding intoxicating beverages without showing the public that they have been drinking. Surely it is an art, and one which few Americans have mastered. A gentleman will carry on his drinking where others not addicted, will not be bothered, and will not make a nuisance of himself in public places.

Canada's Lakes Huge Asset in Her Commerce

steady flow, but in these countries only 30 or 40 thousand H.P. can be produced per annum. The St. Lawrence power is the best in the world, since it is near tidewater. African lakes are inland. Another great advantage of St. Lawrence waterways is that there is only a variation of 1 to 1 in the flow, which is superior to any waterway of importance in the States. When the dam at Morrisburg is put in even this variation will be levelled, giving a flow of some 200,000 cubic feet of water past the Beauharnois plant all the time.

Mr. Swezey outlined the advantages of a surplus supply of water flowing by power plants. "If we are selling half a million H.P. now with one and a half millions yet undeveloped, manufacturers are able to make long term contracts, knowing that in the course of expansion they will not lack sufficient power."

Distance Important

Another great factor, said the speaker, is that of distance. The Beauharnois plant is about twenty-five miles from Montreal. Now it costs $2.50 to transmit one horsepower for a year, whereas the industry uses 1,000,000 H.P. would require $2,500,000. per annum if it wished its power sent to them. Industries like this said the speaker find it cheaper to produce their raw materials near the power plant, especially as it is only 25 miles from town.

The latter portion of the address gave the students a conception of what Canada can do with her power.
Beauharnois half a million, on the internation stretch one million is produced and up-stream 400,000 while at last as much again is still potential.
"With this we can go into business and compete with any country in the world." The United States have no large water power, and the speaker gave the instance of aluminum which is produced with Canadian power in Canada and exported to the States under a lowered tariff. The same thing applies to any part of the world.

"Electric power is Canada's greatest asset, do not let us allow anyone to bluff us into not developing it."
The proof of this lies in many examples of which several were given. In the electric smelting of zinc, hitherto wasted sulphur fumes are now caught Sulphuric acid, and then fertilizer are amongst the valuable by-products derived from utilising this waste. The speaker concluded by expressing the belief that with her resources Canada could and would compete successfully in world markets.

Squad Is Ready For Hard Game Against Queen's

Harold Chard Only Player Definitely Out Of
The Battle

PRACTICES FINISHED

Senior Rugby

Major Forbes would like the senior team to turn out at the Field House tonight at the usual hour for training-table and chalk talk. "Shag" Shaughnessy is expected to be present, and final preparations will be made for the Queen's game tomorrow.

A hard practice last night put the final finishing touch to McGill's senior rugby team, in preparation for their battle against Queen's in the Limestone City on Saturday. It is a "last time" for many different phases of the game, for while last night was the season's final practice, and the Queen's game will mark the exodus of Old McGill from the 1930 intercollegiate rugby race, Saturday will also be the last time fans will see three stars, Granger, Doherty, and McTeer in their accustomed rugby togs of red and white.

Last night's players, and coaches including the indomitable Major Forbes, "Shag" Shaughnessy, and George Draper all got into the practice, which was a stiff one from every point of view. Enough relief men, and intermediates were out to give the regular line the best opposition, and these two buttresses were kept charging at one another till the last minor details were put in satisfactory shape. The redmen suffered a bad break today when it was definitely learned that Harold Chard, who has been playing brilliantly at outside wing all season, is out of the game with a bad knee sustained in the Western battle.

There were no other absentees from the practice, as Bill Lovering was able to gallop around in fine style, figuring prominently in a couple of new plays that may prove to be the most spectacular of the season. George McTeer was in his regular position, while Sam Granger held down flying wing again. This trio will be right in the best of shape to make things warm for the rival gridmen. Swabey was also on hand, and although his knee is still in none too good shape, he will doubtless play a big part in the big game.

Major Forbes is planning to start the same squad he has used in the last two games, which have been bagged by the red and white. Flannery, Doherty and Lovering will line up in the backfield, with Young at quarter, and Halpenny at snap. Russell and Church will be at the inside wing posts, while McTeer and Wilson hold down the middle wings. Probably Urquhart and Fyfe will start at outside. Granger completes a great combination at flying wing. Swabey, Talpis, McMoran, Robertson, Christmas, Newton, and Hilliard give the redmen a substitute line-up as strong as could be desired.

Reports from Queen's indicate that the tricolor intend to make no mistakes, and are not underestimating the strength of their rivals whom they defeated here three weeks ago 6-0, after a scoreless first half. Carter and company have ambitions, not only to win the intercollegiate, but to go right through for the Canadian championship, and they will take some stopping. However, the red and white gridmen, although definitely out of the championship running, mean to throw a monkey wrench into the sports' machinery, and prove that they are at least the equal of the best.

Many students are taking advantage of the reduced return fare to Kingston and return, and will leave with the team and the band on Saturday morning on the fast Canadian National express. They are assured of seeing a great battle.

Soccer Gossip

BY HAT TRICK.

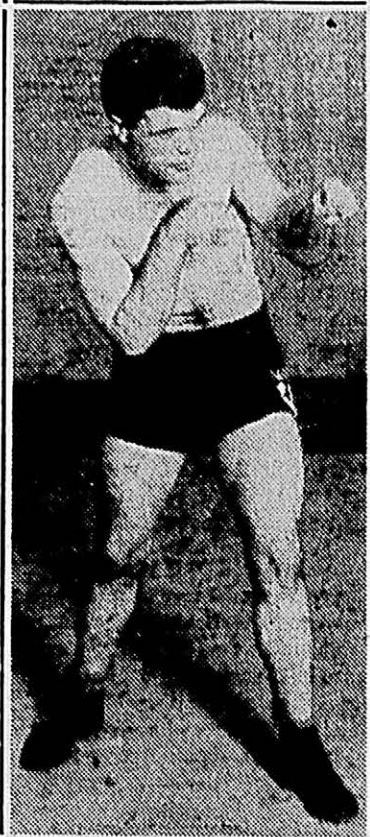

Arts meet Theology this afternoon in the final game of the interfaculty schedule. Arts and Science are now tied at the head of the league but if the former win this afternoon they will have clinched the championship. On the other hand, if the Theologues win there will be a three cornered tie for first place between Arts Theology and Science.

If Arts win they will travel to MacDonald Saturday to play the Aggies for the University championship. The Mac men are boasting a very strong team this year, as was evidenced when they played here last Saturday and they should prove a big factor in the play-offs this fall.

The game this afternoon will start at 2:45 sharp and the managers of the two teams are requested to have their men on hand punctually.

Badminton Club Starts Ladder

Competition Begun in A And B Class Singles and Doubles

MATCH TUESDAY

A ladder for both A and B class singles and doubles was erected for the first time at the badminton practice in the M. H. S. gym last night. As several matches are being planned for both classes in the near future it is hoped that the ladder competition will provide an incentive for greater practice and more enthusiasm in general.

The club is playing a match with R. M. R. club on Tuesday and it is expected that keen competition will ensue. While the McGill team has not yet been announced it is certain to include many of the men who have played for the Red and White in the past and while they are meeting a very strong outfit they can be expected to give as good as they receive.

It was announced last night that tickets to the matches which will be played by the touring English team on the 9th and 10th of December can be obtained from George Chaffies for $1.50 a night or $2.50 for the two nights. All intending to take in these matches should obtain their tickets as the number is limited and the demand very great.

The tentative arrangement of the ladder is given below. The lists were arranged by the committee in as nearly the order of merit as they could judge:

"A" class singles—Mitchell, Seely, Denis, Chaffies Webster, Cox, Johnston, Marler, Chipman, Cohen, Nicholas, Eberwood.

"B" class singles—Hicks, Victor, Call, Shallerross, Sampson, Goodman, Musgrave, Fraser, Gales, McLachlin, McDougall, Evelyn, Leclair, Cleland, Nicholas, Stevens, Rountree, Draper, Pyke, Sutherland.

"A" class doubles—Webster-Seely; Chaffies - Denis; Cox - Shearwood; Marler - Chipman, Cohen - Victor, Mitchell-Partner.

"B" class doubles—Call-Shallerross; Pyke-Sutherland; Fraser-McLachlin, Rountree-Haughton; any others who enter teams.

Cauliflower Column

by K. O.

Real work started last Saturday, when two of the men staged exhibition bouts in a meet at St. Johns, and acquitted themselves very well.

The next blood-letting will be on Tuesday, when five bouts will be fought to a decision. These will be in roped rings at the field-house if quarters are ready by that time; and if not, in the M.H.S. gym.

Tommy Mathews and Bobby Martin, or other prominent Canadian amateurs will in all probability act as judges. Contestants will be announced on Monday, says the coach.

Meanwhile classes are not slackening. These will be held as usual before Monday's bouts, and they will continue after transfer to the field-house. The Berlight Bicycling for Bruisers is not due to vanish; the futile flexible flopping of enflamed frosh — and others — will go on as usual. The turnout is still increasing slowly, but the whole class. Those who come "just for the exercise"—if there are any such—need not hesitate to attend. So much for now.

"No, I only have one match."

Ward Returns to Hockey Practices

Centre Helps Round Out
First Forward Line

GAME MONDAY

Russ Ward returned to training with the candidates for the senior hockey team at yesterday's work-out, and playing both at centre and on the left wing he teamed up well with the other forwards as they carried dangerous rushes into opposing territory and back-checked well at centre ice.

Forwards predominate in the practices, and it looks as if Coach Bobby Bell will have no difficulty in picking two fast and smooth-working lines, both before and after the rubby players join the squad. In the meantime Farquharson is on the defence with McGillivray, while McGill, Ward, Crutchfield, Farmer, Craig and Hutchison, all left-hand shots, are there to take care of the up-ice work. Robertson and Gordie Johnson are the outstanding candidates for the right wing position.

McGill Has Bye

There will be one or two more practices before the first game on Monday night, when the team meets Victorias. McGill is the only one of the five teams in the Senior Group which did not perform last night, but many of the redmen took in the initial double-header to size up the opposition that they will face throughout the winter.

The coach introduced a little extra fun into the drill yesterday when he ran the boys through a speed competition. The circuit of the goals and the rink was clocked without splitting the second, but Bert McGillivray and Gordie Hutchison proved themselves the best of the ten players with 16 seconds each. The surface of the ice was rather rough, so they skated with a stick but without a puck.

Many Good Players

Several combinations for the forward line have been tested by Dr. Bell, but he has not announced his starting line-up yet. It is probable that he will not decide definitely until after the final practice, so that everybody will keep up the fast pace with the hope of fitting in. About 20 men are still possible choices, and probably regular places will be found for most of the rest on the intermediate and junior teams.

Fast hockey will be played in the Senior Group this year, but that provided by the McGill team will be as fast as any. The players are not individual stars, but they are undoubtedly rounding out into a fast, smooth-working, and tricky machine, the equal if not the master of the rest of the teams.

Rifle Champions Begin Practices

Hold First Meeting Of The Year Saturday Afternoon

The McGill Indoor Rifle Association will hold its first meeting of the season Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. in the rifle range of the Montreal High School. Many of the old members are expected back and it is hoped to secure many new ones. A cordial invitation is extended to all those interested in indoor target shooting, whether they have shot before or not. An interesting program is planned for the season and numerous matches will be fired.

The outstanding event of the year is the series of three intercollegiate D.C.R.A. matches. McGill won this series again last year, competing against seven other universities, by a slim four point lead over R.M.C. In through graduation it is hoped that a strong team will be built up to retain the intercollegiate championship in this connection it might be pointed out that newcomers to the club have frequently made the team in their first year of shooting.

The arms used are three Vickers and one B.S.A. .22 calibre rifles. The targets are the standard D.C.R.A. five-bull targets.

Co-Ed Sports

The M.W.S.A.A. are announcing a swimming meet for all faculties and departments of McGill which include women students. The meet is to be held later on in the year but it is hoped that an early announcement will give those interested an opportunity to consider the matter and to get a team ready.

Teams are to have a maximum of four and a minimum of two. Letters will be sent giving the date and the hours for practice preceding the meet. The Library School, M.S.P.E., the Social Workers, women in the Medical Department etc. are asked to keep this in mind.

"I seen my duty—and I collected it," boasted the customs agent.

The following men comprising the Harrier team will entrain for Kingston from Bonaventure Station at 2:45 p.m. Balmer, Lochhead, Calhoun, Stote, Barclay.

Harrier Team Entrain Today

McGill Confident of Regaining Long-Lost Honors

GRAHAM NOT ENTERED

Confident of victory—the first for eleven years—McGill's harrier team entrains for Kingston at 3 this afternoon. Consistent running by all five members of the team won the Dunlop Trophy last Monday, and if the form displayed in the local grind is reproduced in Kingston, there should be at least three redmen in the first five across the line.

Nether Queens, R.M.C. nor Varsity enter the race with admittedly dangerous teams although individual runners from all three colleges may be right up with the leaders at the finish. Graham of Toronto is reported to be reported to be definitely out, but with Smith and Vila still in form the blue are at least to be reckoned with.

Greenwood for R.M.C.

The contingent from the R.M.C. will be led by Greenwood who turned in three remarkable performances at the intermediate track meet. Seright is Queen's best bet.

The course covers 5.6 miles and lies through fields and along tar macadam roads. Although a difficult route from the point of view of footing, it has the advantage of being comparatively level, with few turns. McGill harriers have never practiced through mud and will therefore find the going in Kingston rather rougher than it is at home.

Representative Team

Five members of the harrier represent five different faculties; Balmer, medicine; Lochhead, Applied Science; Calhoun, law; Stote, Arts; and Barclay, Commerce. Any one of these may step out and win the race. All are in the condition to go the full distance and take whatever punishment may be necessary.

The race starts at 11 o'clock from the vicinity of the Richardson Memorial Stadium. McGill supporters who follow the football team to the Limestone City will have plenty of time to see the finish of the harrier run before lunch.

MEDICINE KEEPS RUGBY TITLE BY VICTORY OVER MACDONALD

Medicine's blue-clad football machine again captured the interfaculty title as they shut out Macdonald College by a 17 to 0 score yesterday afternoon at St. Anne's. As a result of their victory the boys from the Med Building added their third consecutive title to their hitherto long string of victories.

From the start it was evident that the three-time champions were superior. On the second play in the first quarter, Med kicked to Macdonald and the Aggie half fumbled. Tarbox fell on the oval for a touch which was converted. Shortly after Medicine's line plungers began an orgy up to Macdonald's five yard line. The St. Anne's aggregation held for two downs and on the final down a wait-executed sawbone extension play resulted in a another touch, which went unconverted.

Trailing by eleven points as the second stanza opened, Macdonald fought hard throughout the entire period to hold the doctors. Stothard, on the formers' backfield, electrified the crowd with several forty yard runs through a broken field. His efforts went for naught as the Macdonald punter assumed a rather weak role.

Third Quarter

At the start of the third session Macdonald managed to force into Medicine territory only to lose the piskin on a fumble while in a threatening position. Tarbox and Creighton, for the doctors rose to unexcelled heights of football playing as they time and again broke through for large gains. The diminutive "Boxie," as he is affectionately known at the Med Building, proved to be too elusive for the Macdonald footballers. Several medicine forward passes, which proved to be the highlight of former victories, failed miserably, as three attempts went uncompleted.

In the final period, Medicine continued its plunging tactics, and their efforts were rewarded by another major score towards the close of the period. Creighton converted.

Successful Season

All in all, the interfaculty season came to an end in a blaze of glory. Close competition in all games was evident, though in several of the Med battles, their superiority was distinguishable. The med team went through the season without a loss.

the heroine, played by Ruth Wilanski, is in love with an aviator who is at odds with her father. Meanwhile her father has pledged her to another man who in the end turns out to be a criminal. The other players were Naomi Jackson as the nervous aviator, Margaret Bieler as the nervous father, Joy Oswald as M. Premisson, the effeminate criminal, and Faye Herschman as the maid. The play was "Les Deux Timides," by Labiche.

Juniors' Play Amusing

The most amusing, as well as the shortest, comedy was that given by members of the junior year. This was a medieval costume farce, called "Le Roi Dagobert," in which the king was seen to drink heavily, go hunting, and finally fight a duel in which he was slain thoroughly. Priscilla Pearce, in a doublet and cloak, was the king, Anne Rowley, in veils and more veils, was the stately queen; Margaret Cameron was, St. Eloi. Wenonah Beswick the army, and Mildred Ball the enemy in startling armor. Last but by no means least, Rose Zahalan impersonating the devil, the appearance of the fiery visitor from the infernal regions drew great applause from the audience.

The last performance was a very modern drama called "La Maison de Crime," which had its setting in a broadcasting station. The actors in the studio were giving a play over the air. They stood in front of the microphone and read their parts. The play was an exciting story including a detective, a locksmith, and a secretary. It gave a good idea of the way in which radio plays are conducted. The players were Ellison Schnebly, Janet Smart, and Marjorie Hadwin as the locksmith, secretary, and detective respectively.

Professor Praises Efforts
As soon as the applause had died away Professor du Roure expressed the appreciation of the French department by saying that these actors and actresses put all other Montreal performers in the shade.

An unexpected addition to the program was added when Miss Furness' little daughter sang two French songs, unaccompanied, to the delight of the audience.

It is reported by Professor Jumblewit of the U. that the knights of yore used baby dragons for cigarette lighters.

SENIOR LAWS TO DON DERBIES, SPATS, CANES

The campus is ablaze this morning with fastidious young men, who present the latest in bat-wing collars, morning coats, derbies, canes, and maybe, even spats.

There is no diplomatic conclave on the campus, and the floor-walkers are not holding their annual convention at Baylor. In fact there is nothing about the situation of distinctive dress among the score or so of males, which should alarm the most cautious. The spottily attired young men are only Senior laws, who have taken it upon themselves to dress with the dignity becoming a senior law man, at least once a week, according to Bud Cochran, senior law proxy.

Old Tradition
Dean Allen G. Flowers, of the law school, is said to have instigated the carrying of the cane. The remainder of the costume is a continuation of a tradition in the law school, which was temporarily abandoned last year.

For many years it has been the custom of senior students in the law school to drag out the distinctive dress Friday of each week. The tradition was discontinued last year, and has been revived by the senior class this year, to become a more or less permanent tradition.

Law Dignified

"We're not trying to be conspicuous," Cochran stated yesterday. "We are merely carrying out a law school tradition and, too, senior law deserves some symbol of dignity and is entitled to respect. This is one means of attaining that end." Accordingly, Dean Flowers will be absolved from the duty of admonishing the students in his classroom to go back to the room and "get your tie and coat" this morning, at least as far as the seniors are concerned, because the Seniors are present and accounted for dolled out in a manner which will best enable them to pay court to their first love, the law, and in a manner befitting a custodian of the law.

the increase. Consequently new capital is attracted into industry, and old capital is extended. This causes over-capitalization, which causes the troubles experienced during crises. Overproduction, as a cause, declared the speaker, is absolutely without foundation. If the cause lies at all in production, it lies in unbalanced production, not in overproduction.

Depressions, continued the speaker, are not unmix ed curses, since they enable the buyer to secure many bargains, and also eliminate speculative ideas and high-cost production. Some of the most efficient methods of production have been developed during times of crisis.

There are three types of unemployment. The permanent unemployed, the seasonal and the unemployable. The seasonal unemployment is caused by the climate, since farm labor decreases during the winter. As a remedy, the speaker suggested the manufacture of farming and other machinery, which can absorb the unemployed in the winter. For permanent unemployed and the unemployable, he suggested, first, a system of unemployment insurance and alternating shifts to "iron out" the cycles, and, what are much more important since they are permanent remedies, the advancement of research and invention to increase the ability of industry to satisfy wants. Further, he advocated shorter hours and better employment of leisure. This latter the speaker stressed as he claimed that it was absurd to complain about the unemployment situation when over 8,000 children of from 10 to 14 years of age were gainfully employed.

though handicapped, up to the present, by lack of facilities, the Council has done much to improve production in Canadian industries, enabling them to compete with foreign products. Concluding, Mr. Lathe urged his hearers to remember that research did not have to be carried on in a laboratory, and that it could be just as profitable when done in a plant. He also reminded them that research relieved the monotony of work and in many cases does much good.

THE GO-BETWEEN

By Heine is the tale related:
Two lyric trees for union panted
But found through space their hopes frustrated, Too far from one another planted.
If they had only placed reliance On just a bit of modern science!

"Dormitory Life Good Thing For Co-Eds" Says Dean Franklin

BOSTON, Me.—"Our girls come to college with too little money," says Dean Lucy J. Franklin, University dean of women. "The result is that their health and culture suffer."

"The modern girl needs personality development just as well as academic standing to fit her for a position in the business world. This opportunity, which is best obtained through dormitory life, is denied to most of the B. U. girls, who spend much of their time in commuting. Dormitory life keeps the girl under a certain amount of restriction, which leaves no room for the development of loose manners."

"Today a cultural background which develops personality is equally as important as courses and studying. Dormitory life gives the girl a certain poise and training which is required by many of the present-day employers. This dormitory life cannot be afforded by most of the B. U. girls. Those who hire college girls often ask as one of the foremost questions, 'Has this girl had dormitory life?'"

"Many B. U. girls have little spending money. This is a great misfortune

Will Debate on Women's Rights

The leaders will probably deal on the political side of the question only, leaving the social, domestic and business points of view to the others.

For the negative, Beatrice Rosenbaum speaks third, and Phil Matthews sixth. The former won the debating cup at Strathcona Academy in her 11th year. She is secretary of the Maccabean Circle. Phil Matthews is a B. Sc. of London University, a McGill graduate, and now a student in the United Theological College. Prominent in student circles, he has been an editor of the Daily, candidate for presidency of the Student's Council and leads various activities. Max Ford will also speak.

to 12. Then in the election of this fall Hitler surprised Germany and the world by obtaining 107 seats for the National Socialist Party.

His party is to a great extent made up of disbanded officers and monarchists who were in opposition to the Republican Government. During the recent election several riots and clashes occurred in Berlin during which the National Socialist or the "Hitlerites" as they are also called behaved in a way which the speaker of the evening characterized as "barbarian thoughtlessness and boyish vandalism."

Program Outlined

The speaker then outlined the program of the National Socialist Party. Its chief characteristic seems to be that of Chauvinism. The Hitlerites also want to abandon all the reparations payments and demand a return of German colonies. Further Mr. Hitler has an idea of creating a "pure race" which according to the speaker was rather difficult as the German population is made of three or four entirely different races. The policy of anti-Semitism also looms large on the Hitler program.

This program will only be carried through in case the Government is turned over to the Hitlerites. According to the speaker, however, they at present prefer to be in opposition and will probably do their utmost to spoil the program of the present winning Government. Mr. Bruening's program is featured by drastic financial reforms. His slogan is economy which is going to be carried through by the means of severe cuts in the salaries of all civil servants, by higher excise taxes on tobacco and similar commodities. A deficit of from 750 to 900 million. Reichsmark is foreseen in the 1930 budget. Of this 300, million Reichsmarks are scheduled to go to the relief of unemployment.

Controversy Follows

After Mr. Heuser's paper a lively discussion followed which centred on Fascism and the payment of reparations. The present natives of France and Germany added to the interest of the discussion.

The discussion had to be cut short due to important business matters which were to be brought before the meeting. The question of the proposed Model assembly of the League of Nations to be held here in February was discussed both from the point of view of the League of Nations Club and that of the Students' Council. No definite decision was reached as to whether the Assembly could be held and the matter has been left for future discussion.
